Lloyd Bowell Promoted.

Word has reached Plymouth that Lloyd Bowell, one of Plymouth's sons, was recently called up into the head office of the Washburn-Crosby Company in Minneapolis where has been employed for seventeen months.

The young man answered the summons with some trepidation, not knowing exactly what was in the wind. He was informed that his work was so satisfactory that he would hereafter be in charge of all the salesmen of the house, and there are a good many of them, too.

Lloyd has been in the book-keeping department where he has audited the books. This new promotion is the third he has had since he began working for the company and places him in the third highest position in the whole office building where three hundred people are employed.

By March the new position will bring him a salary of from $1800 to $2000.

CENTER STREET LOOMING INTO PROMINENCE

FINE HOMES, GOOD CLASS OF PEOPLE, AND BEAUTIFUL SHADE TREES ARE THERE.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS

All Improvements are in Electricity, Gas, Water, Electricity, Sewer Long Stretch of Pavement.

Center Street is fast looming into prominence as one of the leading thoroughfares of our city. Residents of Michigan avenue have long felt sorry for those unfortunate souls who were denied by an unkind Fate the privilege of living on what they considered THE AVENUE. Resident of Center Street are no longer receiving good humoredly such pity but feel that they themselves are the center of attraction of our fair city—the very hub, in fact.

Many fine homes now grace this beautiful street, and in these homes dwell some of our best people. The street is shaded by as beautiful trees as are to be found anywhere. But the immediate advantage which is placing Center Street in the lead among our roadways is the fact that almost all of our public buildings are to be found here.

The new Catholic Church adds a dent of Center Street are no longer all of that part of town. When completed it will be one of Plymouth's most imposing edifices, and will tend to make those tourists from the north who are sailing down Michigan avenue in their auto-cars swerve from their straight course on Michigan avenue, over to Center Street to see the attractions there. They will have to do this if they get any idea of our public buildings.

On Center street are to be found the following public buildings: The new Catholic Church, The present Catholic Church, St. Michael's Academy, St. Joseph's Hall, County Jail, County Court House, St. Thomas Episcopal Church, Episcopal Rectory, Episcopal Parish House, German Evangelical Church, Evangelical Parsonage, City Hall and Fire Dept. Station, Methodist Episcopal Church, The City Fathers have recently bought a lot on Center street on which they propose to place a new City Hall. The Library Board are likely to choose the Cleveland lot as a site for the new Public Library. Dr. Knott is building a fine new office building with a flat above on the corner of Garro and Center streets.

Center street is paved from LaPorte street to Harrison street, and is supplied with all the modern improvements, gas, water, electricity, and sewer and is rapidly becoming really the CENTER STREET.

Opinion of the Press

The Indianapolis News, in speaking of Senator Kern's election, congratulates the people of the state for having had the opportunity of voting practically direct for senator, but it withheld from the republican party of the state the credit for making such an opportunity possible. Even after the republican had set the pace and "nominated" Senator Beveridge by indorsing him as their candidate for re-election it was all the Marshall wing of the democratic party could do to get the democratic convention to adopt a similar policy, though it was self-evident that any other policy would be suicidal.—Elkhart Review.
